ALLURING CHIFFON FROCKS TAKE ON NEW STYLE POINTS

WHEN the talk is of chiffon frocks it is to be taken for granted that it includes those made of georgette, since these exquisite, twin-sister fabrics are so much alike that what is said about one is true of the other. Midsummer brings them into full bloom in gowns that float through afternoons and evenings and are as decorative as flowers. There is a craze for delicate materials and dark, plain colors in tailored styles, or light colors in sports styles are liable to be encountered at any time of day when hot weather arrives. Just one more of those pretty, printed chiffon frocks that prove so flattering to their wearers has had its picture made for the benefit of those who wish to liven up their wardrobes with something new for mid-summer. One glance shows its fitness for whatever the afternoon or evening may bring to pass in the way of entertainment. These joyous, printed patterns in georgette or chiffon rarely employ trimming, but occasionally a plain color, matching some color in the printed pattern, is used in bandings and sometimes a little lace is adroitly introduced in their construction. Quite a number of models incorporate the cape and its modifications, as a part of the ensemble, and often it is cleverly managed to partly cover the arms. In the gown pictured the debonaire cavalier cape is detachable and has flat ties made of the chiffon. The frock has a long bodice and a full rippled skirt. Its new feature is the wide, crushed girdle, also made of the chiffon and fastening at the left side. Comparatively few frocks are short-sleeved, but wing treatments and capes that extend over the arms and terminate at the sides of the bodice are rivals of the long-sleeved modes. Many neck lines are "V" shaped and very new collars are convertible—that is, they are high at the back and form revers when open at the front. But they are edged with a narrow flat fold that is extended into long tie ends, so they may be turned up about the throat with the ties wound once about the neck.

Taber Reveals Farm Status to Coolidge

Paul Smith's, Aug. 23 (UP)—President Coolidge heard the other side of farm prosperity reports when Louis Taber, master of national grain experts, told him farmers were far from enjoying the wealthy condition prevalent before the war. The statement is in direct variance to reports by other farm and economic experts, who claimed farmers in the middle west are enjoying exceptional prosperity. Taber admitted that farmers are in better condition now than last year and believes such favorable conditions would continue.

NOTICE CITY WATER USERS

On account of water conditions many people are compelled to use city water for washing and are inconvenienced because of its hardness. To overcome this add one teaspoonful of Rub-No-More Washing Powder (the Original 5c Water Softener) to each gallon of city water. IT SAVES SOAP. Besides its 15 household usages it is the only cleanser that will clean sinks and tubs and dissolve upon rinsing. No sand left to clog drain pipes.
